LEISURE LINE-UP

A BAND of elderly Robin Hoods who steal furs to sell for the benefit of the poor are disconcerted by the arrival of a detective played by Tony Bray in this scene from East Bridgford Drama Group's presentation of Peter Coke's "A Breath of Spring."

Their escapades start when cockney maid Lily Thompson (played by Kim Levis, second from left) gives her benefactor, Dame Beatrice (Janet Morris, standing, centre) a fur wrap as a thank you for letting her stay at her flat.

Dame Beatrice and her other lodgers — elocution teacher Nanette Parry (Janice White in turban), Lady Miller (Jean Preston, kneeling beside her), the Brigadier (Dick Wood) and timid china repairer Hattie (Moly Wood) — return the wrap undetected.

Their success in getting away with this goes to their heads and when Beatrice suggests a repeat performance they are soon wedded to a life of crime.

The show will be presented in the village hall from Wednesday to Saturday. It is being produced by Jean Starbuck.
