Tonight's Cast

Peter Salter. Since his last appearance on stage as Jack in Love Begins at Fifty, Peter has been one half of the Salter and Pepper team involved in the production and direction side of our plays. Tonight he plays Victoria Pepper's big brother. But, it's not easy for Howard with two sisters organising him.

Victoria Pepper. Last year was a busy one for Victoria. She appeared in all three of our plays as well as being the other half of the Salter and Pepper production and direction team. Tonight she plays Frances, freshly back from holidaying in the Caribbean. Victoria was hoping the Group would send her on a Caribbean holiday so that she could make the character more authentic. She wishes!

Jean Starbuck. Jean played Mrs Fletcher-Brewer in our last play - Off the Hook. Tonight, in her role as Rachel, we see another side of Jean's consummate skills, as she plays the middle child in the family, who has not enjoyed the financial success achieved by both her elder brother and her younger sister.

Mick Quinn. It's been quite a while since Mick's last appearance on stage as Tristram in Taking Steps. Tonight he makes a welcome return to our stage as Colin, the caring and hard-working husband of Rachel who, alas, can't quite afford to keep her in the style she'd like to aspire to.

Len Jackson. Like Peter, Len hasn't appeared on our stage since our production of Love Begins at Fifty, when he played Clive, who advertised in the Lonely Hearts column in order to try and recapture his youth. Tonight he plays David who has not exactly made a success of his relationships either.
