Comedy to savour

EAST Bridgford Drama Group, which has many members and supporters in Bingham and the surrounding villages, is staging The Village Fete, a comedy by Peter Tinniswood, at the Village Hall, East Bridgford from February 20 to February 24.

Each performance starts at 7.30pm. The play is an absorbing, tender study of a family of misfits. Directed by Kate Thornburrow and produced by Peter Salter, the cast comprises Liz Morgan, Alan Haydock, Ella Ross, Peter Salter, Mark Pilgrim, Vicky Rees, Nigel Lawrence and Valerie Allen.

Tickets, £4, are available from East Bridgford News or Post Office.

Tonight's Cast

Liz Morgan We are delighted to welcome Liz back to the East Bridgford stage following several recent successes at Averham Theatre, culminating in a singing and dancing role in Cabaret. Tonight we bring Liz back down to earth and a pre-occupation with spiders.

Alan Haydock They say you can't have too much of a good thing, or is that good ol' thing? Well, he's back for his 40th production with EBDG.

Ella Ross Ella demonstrates tonight how taking anything that is offered 'free and gratis' should be with a smile.

Peter Salter Peter thought he was auditioning for a part in 'The Railway Children' not as an author of books on Railways.

Mark Pilgrim Fresh from his success in 'Down to Brass Tacks' as the naïve Percy, tonight Mark portrays someone with real experience of living life to the full.

Vicky Rees It is a pleasure to see Vicky acting again, particularly in a role that she can bring all her experience to bare. (oops...bear)

Nigel Lawrence Nigel is another actor making a comeback and we hear he's an expert in couplings!

Valerie Allen Valerie bravely makes her stage debut tonight which is why she might look a little 'intent' towards the end.

Malcolm Cope and Jeff Casterton play the removal men. Jeff was the town councillor in 'Down to Brass Tacks' while Malcolm has not been seen on stage with EBDG since the late 1980's
